Seven Persons Rescued From Burning Building

Heroic Work on Part of Firemen Prevent Persons From Being Suffocated by Smoke in Sunday Morning Blaze

EIGHTEEN AUTOS ARE DESTROYED

Damage Estimated at $30,000—Firemen Work 3 Hours —Origin of Blaze Not Determined—Started In Garage of Slocombe Brothers—Only Two of Machines Destroyed Were Insured.

Trapped by smoke from a fire which shortly after midnigth Saturday night started on the first floor of the four-story brick building, 114 South Fairfax street, occupied as a garage by John W. and H. G. Slocombe operated under the name of Slocombe Brothers, seven out of nine persons occupying the third and fourth floors of the building were rescued by the firemen, being brought down a fifty-five foot extension ladder and down the stairs of the building.

The persons rescued were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Shanks and two little children, who occupied rooms on the fourth floor and Mrs. Jesse Berry and two children who occupied rooms on the third floor. Mr. Berry and a young son came down the steps with out the aid of the firemen. Mr. Berry in addition to his wife has three children, two boys and a girl.

Mrs. Shanks and her two young children were rushed to the Alexandria Hospital. Mrs. Shanks suffering from shock and her two children being overcome by smoke. They were treated by Dr. S. B. Moore and are still patients at the hospital. It was stated today that they are rapidly recovering from the effects. Mrs Berry and her two children went to the home of a neighbor for the night

The rear part of the structure was destroyed and eighteen automobiles and one motorcycle the property of different parties, went up in flames.

John A. McCuen, chief operator of Motor Company No. 1, had his left elbow mashed when a fifty-five foot extension ladder fell on it, it being badly cut. He was treated by Dr. S. B. Moore.

The damage is estimated at about $30,000. Of this amount it is estimated that the loss to the automobiles destroyed will be about $20,000 and the damage to the building, which is owned by J. A. Eggborn and W. H. Heymel will be about $5,000. partially covered by insurance and the loss of Slocombe Brothers will be about $4 000 or $5,000, partially covered by insurance.

According to reports only two of the cars in the garage were insured. The only machine saved was a small truck in the rear of the garage, on the first floor, which was owned by W. L. Rammel.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. It is regarded as certain that it started in the garage which occupied the first floor of the building, and may have been caused from an auomobile or from crossed wires it is said by some of the firemen.

The rescue work was conducted by Fire Chief E. J. McDermott, assisted by John A. McCuen Eugene Simpson, Jack Tullock, John Travers and C. Pullman.

Owners of the cars destroyed follow: B. Grady, automobile and motorcycle. W. H. Foot C. E. Massey. Rufus Mathers, Charles P. Miller, C. A. Aistrop, Thomas Powell E. E. Santmire, two automobiles, Collie Simpson. J. A. Sampson, Eston Walker. B. Wilson, A. J. Haugh, J. Reece Caton H. M. Wagner, and Emerson and Baker, the last named of Washington.

The entire rear end of the structure was destroyed, and it was here that the automobiles were stored. The firemen, however succeeded in confining the blaze to the rear end of the building, the upper floors of the front end being used exclusively for residential purpose with the exception of the second floor and the front end of this floor was used by the garage proprietors for an electric shop and also for offices.

The front end of the building was only slightly damaged by water and smoke.

The firemen worked on the blaze til 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The fire made a big blaze and attracted a crowd of several thousand persons. Two rescued persons were brought out of the house in their night clothes, and suffered considerably from exposure.

Before the rescue work was begun Chief McDermott went through the smoke enveloped building before permitting his men to enter and then he called to his men to volunteer.

There was a ready response on the part of the participating firemen and it was with the greatest difficulty that the men groped their way through the smoke enveloped structure and brought the persons to safety.

The alarm was turned in at 12:08 o'clock Sunday morning by Joseph Buckley to John A. McCuen, chief operator of Motor Company No. 1. When the firemen arrived on the scene the rear end of the place was enveloped and no time was lost by the firemen in putting several streams on the burning structure. The fire made a big blaze and was exceedingly hot.

First work of the volunteers was that of rescuing the occupants of the house.

The firemen were greatly praised for the splendid rescue work they did, praise coming from every side and also for the fact that they succeeded in keeping the blaze confined to that part of the building in which it originated.

SPLENDID WORK OF CHILDREN IS EXHIBITED

Sewing Classes Under Ladies Auxiliary of Y. M. C. A. Show Progress

MOTHERS ARE GUESTS

Expressions of Appreciation Heard on Work Done—New Classes to Start First Saturday in February.

A very creditable exhibit of the work of the children's sewing classes which are conducted weekly by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., was held at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, Saturday afternoon from two to four o'clock. At this time the mothers were the guests of their daughters to view the exhibit, to meet the teachers, and to enjoy a social hour over cups of chocolate, and see the inimitable Charlie Chaplin in "The Vagabond." Among the teachers present who helped to receive the guests of the afternoon were Mrs. W. E. Swan, Mrs. B. Wheatley, Miss Ella R. Smoot, Mrs. C. E. Dare, Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Mrs. M. L. Horner, Mrs. H. B. Caton and Miss Inez G. Rea, the special sewing teacher who now has supervision of the school.

It was very interesting to see the progress which some of the younger pupils had made since their entry in the school in the fall, as was abundantly evidenced by the improvement of their work on their samplers for learning the stitches. Some of the older girls who were on garment making had some splendid work on exhibit, notably bloomers, a night-gown with hand embroidery, and a very attractive and well made kimono. The mothers were evidently delighted with the work which their daughters had accomplished judging by the comments which were made to the teachers and their genuine appreciation of the value of the school.

Beginning the first Saturday in February, new classes will open for beginners who may desire to enter at this time, and already several new names have been received for enrollment.

It is interesting to note that several pupils are enrolled from places outside of Alexandria proper, among them being Del Ray and Mt. Vernon district. The outline of the course follows:

Sampler 1: Bastings (even and uneven; combination basting, tucking. Sampler 2: running, whole back, half back, overcasting. Sampler 3: Hemming, facing, napkin hem, bias facing. Bag: outline stitch. French fell seam, flat fell seam, patch, hooks and eyes, gathering and gauging, placket, button and button holes, doll petticoat, sewing apron, simple night-gown.

MINISTERS HOLD MEETING

Ask Full Investigation of Alleged Divorce Evil

(Communicated)

At a called meeting of the Ministers' Association of Alexandria held Saturday afternoon, January 21st., it was RESOLVED that the undersigned pastors present at this meeting greatly deplore the unenviable notoriety into which our beloved city has been brought by the assertions published in a certain newspaper as to the administration of the divorce laws; and that whereas the pastors have been reproached in the columns of the same paper for their alleged silence as to the charges made, it seems to us wise and proper to pronounce no assured judgement until such charges shall have been investigated and the facts fully ascertained; and that we are confidently and hopefully depending upon the Bar of the City through its chosen committee to make a full and thorough investigation without fear or favor, with a view to maintaining the dignity of the Law and promoting the welfare of our City, State and Country.

It should also in fairness be noted that whereas the charges made directly involve a few persons, who may or may not be guilty, there are many others, both lawyers and householders, who have consistently refused to profit by opportunities to enrich themselves in the manner suggested.

(Signed) — Edgar Carpenter, rector Grace Episcopal Church; Robert Browne, pastor Methodist Protestant Church; William J. Morton, rector Christ Episcopal Church; John Lee Allison, pastor Presbyterian Church; Owen P. Lloyd, pastor Second Paptist Church; D. H. Martin, pastor M. E. Church; Samuel A. Wallis, rector Immanuel Episcopal Church; Eugene B. Jackson, pastor First Baptist Church; Percy Foster Hall, Rector St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 23.—There is a disposition in Washington among the admirers of former President and Mrs Wilson that the Foundation fund which they are raising to further the cause of world peace ought to include Mrs. Wilson as well as her husband. Certainly no woman has won greater admiration than Mrs. Wilson here in the national capital where her hourly devotion to the ex-President has been closely noted.

She never leaves him one second, and sees absolutely no one but members of the family or his friends. She has no interests or diversions of her own. Every moment is devoted to her husband, and of course, no matter how much her respect, admiration and affection may be involved it has not all been rosy. However, no one who watched Mrs. Wilson in the hey-day of America's triumph is surprised by her present conduct. Therefore, in view of her self-abnegation at Paris when she had the world at her feet, no one need be astonished at her present devotion and tender care.

Two alleged bootleggers, after being chased through Alexandria by motorcycle police crashed into an automobile truck at Washington and after a lively exchange of revolver shots one escaped and one was captured by the police.

Action taken by Congressman Campbell of Kansas to investigate case of Alfred P. Knowles war veteran sentenced to six years imprisonment for automobile stealing Knowles protests he is innocent and is on the fourteenth day of a hunger strike, declaring that death is preferable to serving a sentence for a crime he did not commit.

Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee started a revision of practically all of the schedules of the permanent tariff bill, based on revised data as to protection needs presented to the committee in more han three months of public hearings. This is the final process of whipping the bill into shape for presentation to the Senate which, it is expected, will act on it early in March.

Antiquated laws concerning women now on Virginia statute books are scored in a statement made by Mrs. Matthews of the Research Department of National Woman's party.

Virginia discriminates against her women in many respects," said Mrs. Matthews. There are now on the Virginia statute books medieval laws, relics of a by-gone age and contrary in spirit to twentieth century thought, as well as to the tradition of liberty and equality for which Virginia stands. In Virgina mothers are not the equal guardians of their own children. The old common law doctrine of the father's superior right to the child still prevails. The father has the paramount right to the child's custody, control, services and earnings."

Mrs. Matthews arguments are based on a detailed analysis of the 1919 edition of Virginia code and upon the acts of the Virginia assembly through the 1920 regular session.

Claude Kitchin, today congratulated President Harding on his ability to find a job which Postmaster Will Hays can fill better than his present cabinet position. He declared that "moving picture showman Hays" will find the movie business more fitting to his ability than the position of Postmaster General.

Mr. Kitchin is minority leader of the Democratic Party.

Isaac Gregg.

Bible Thought for Today

LOVE FULFILLS THE LAW:—Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.—Romans 13:8, 10.

POPE'S BODY LIES IN STATE WORLD MOURNS

Italy Establishes Precedent By Paying Official Tribute For First Time

GASPARRI IN CHARGE

Prelates Hasten to Rome to Join in Nine Day Rites and Official Conclave.

Rome, Jan. 23.—While the body of Benedict XV. lies in state in the throne room at the Vatican with a constant procession of princes of the church, papal emissaries archbishops, priests, and other high dignitaries passing in silent tribute to the dead pontiff. the Italian state, for the first time in the history of federated Italy has officially recognized a period of mourning for the Pope.

A state decree ordering all flags in municipalities throughout Italy and her colonies, at half staff, and the closing of all places of amusement for two days has been issued by the government. In view of the long struggle between the state and the Vatican and the noteworthy attempts of Benedict XV to bring about a reppochement between the church and the government—as successfully instanced in the resumption of relations between France and the Pope—the action of the Italian government is considered significant in ecclesiastical and civil quarters.

The body of the pontiff was removed at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the death chamber to the throne room, where, in life Benedict had conducted many of his most far reaching state audiences.

Under his will the terms of which were read directly after the solemn ceremony establishing his death, the body will not be embalmed.

Cardinal Merry Del Val, who acted as cardinal chamberlain during the last few days of the Pope's illness, has been replaced by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state. The cardinal chamberlain is vested with all the papal authority in the interim between the Pope's death and the election of his successor. He issues no bills or papal edicts however, for Benedict's seals have been broken in order that no further acts may go out under his name.

The call has been issued for the convening of the college of cardinals and from every part of the world high church officials are hastening to Rome for the conclave. Already prelates from various European countries are arriving.

The bells of St. Peter's and other churches in the city tolled throughout the day, and thousands outside the Vatican and at churches praved for the Pope.

The last moments of the Pope's life were dramatic, but the actual end come peacefully. A few minutes before six o'clock in the morning His Holiness was aroused from the state of coma into which he had been sinking during the night, and inquired what time it was. He was informed that it was nearly six o'clock and requested apparently in delirium that he be dressed for the 5 o'clock mass which Cardinal Vigor had been asked to celebrate at the little chapel near the bedside. The mass had already been said.

Earlier in the night, during one of his lucid moments, Benedict declared that he "would willingly give his life for the pacification of the world."

"I am thirsty." His Holiness then murmured. Delirium then returned. He struggled feebly with attendants, insisting that he be shaved immediately, "because it was a long time since they had shaved him." Then Pope Benedict's body relaxed. Physicians found his extremities cold and then after a last effort to restore His Holiness, death was officially announced after the prescribed ceremonies had been carried out.

The body as it rests in the throne room, is dressed in white the robes familiar to all who have been admitted in audience. It rests on a bed covered with a red silken blanket, and at each corner is a great golden candle in which huge, almost monumental candles, are constantly burning.

Indorse Senator Swanson

Alexandria Trades Council Proud of His Efforts in Behalf of Labor

The following Resolution of the Alexandria Trades Council was adopted under date of January 6th, with reference to Senator Swanson:

"The delegates of this Council, representing all of the affiliated craft organizations of labor in the City of Alexandria, desire me to advise you that your candidacy for re-election to the Senate has their hearty endorsement. Your support of measures favorable to the organized labor movement, as made evident by your recorded votes in the Senate, is a matter of just pride to us and we are happy to be able to extend you this endorsement."

VIRGINIA NEWS PARAGRAPHED

Petersburg—Dr. Joseph M. Burke, one of the most prominent physicians and surgeons of this city and chief surgeon for the Seaboard Air Line Railway, has been tendered the position of professor of materia medica in the post graduate medical college at Atlanta. Dr. Burke has declined the post, one of the reasons being that he would have to surrender his position with the railway, one which he has held for many years.

Richmond—Adjutant General Jo Jane Stern has been appointed general chairman of a committee which will arrange for the Confederate reunion in Richmond next June, it was learned here recently. Plans for the reunion will soon be formulated and distributed among the various camps of Virginia. Willam Watts Camp, Confederate Veterans, will be represented at the reunion next year and are interested as to what plans will be made for entertaining the comrades in Richmond in June.

Norfolk—The wholesale price of the 16 ounce loaf of bread has been reduced by three local bakeries to 6 cents and other bakeries are expected to follow suit. The cut in bread prices was inaugurated here by a local chain store concern, which today is selling a 14 ounce loaf at retail for 6 cents.

Norfolk—Charged with stealing electricity from the Virginia Railway and Power Company, in using the current direct from the street without having it pass through a meter, cases of Richard Holmes and James Darden, both colored, have been continued by Police Justice Simmons until next Tuesday.

Portsmouth—When a delegation representing Lee and Harrison wards of the city called on General Jervey city manager, to protest personally against the reported intention to remove Chief of Police Talbot, that official confirmed the rumors that a change at the head of the department is contemplated.

Kenbridge——Dr. T. C. Harris, of Kenbridge today made denial in toto of a story printed under a Petersburg date line in publications of January 19, purporting to describe an adventure the physician had with an alleged robber dressed in woman's clothing. Dr. Harris was represented as having courteously offered a seat in his car to a well dressed woman carrying a heavy satchel on the road near Kenbridge. The supposed woman's hat blew off and she stepped from the car to recover it, according to the published story. In leaving the car the woman's skirt caught in the door, showing the trousers of a man. Dr. Harris was represented as driving off at full speed, leaving the person in the road The physician declares that no such incident as that described ever happened to him and is at a loss to know how such a report should have gained currency.

Newport News——Norman H. Trotty, charged with feloniously running down an officer at Hilton village with his automobile was found not guilty Thursday by a Warwick county jury after spending four months in jail. Mr. Trotty was unable to give bond after being indicted by the grand jury and it was four months later that he was put on trial. The jury Thursday decided there was no evidence to support the charges against Trotty.

Gets Number Thirteen

H. Melvin Devers, clerk in the police court, has been conferred with police powers, and today he received badge No. 13. Mr. Devers said he has no fear of thirteen being a "hoodoo" for him and thinks as President Wilson about this number, that it is his lucky number.

At the conclusion of the program a banquet will be served by Martha Washington Chapter No. 42, Eastern Star.

MORE TALK OF CONFERENCE ADJOURNING

Prediction is That It Will Not Last Beyond First 10 Days in February

FIGHT OVER CHINA

Expected That The Twenty-One Demands Will be Taken up Within a Few Days

Washington, Jan. 22—In all three of the main lines of work the Conference is very near the terminal point as it starts the new week, and talk of adjournment is again heard on all sides, with predictions made generally that this last week in January and the first week or 10 days in February will mark the end.

In the naval end of the Conference, the main thing still open is the question of Pacific fortifications, and there has been ample time for a dozen exchanges of views between the delegations and their Governments; in the Far Eastern end, the most important remaining subject of debate, so far as China is concerned, is the 21 demands, and after China is definitely out of the way Siberia will be taken up and probably disposed of rapidly. In the Shantung negotiations, as in the naval matters, there has been ample for numerous exchanges of ample time for numerous exchanges of views on the railroad question, so that it should not be hard to agree or disagree when the delegates are ready to do so.

Of these three main lines of work the one that seems to offer most opportunity of collision is the Far Eastern. This time last week the air was filled with rumors of impending clashes, in which the American delegation would assume the aggressive in behalf of the Chinese. The events of the week have not justified the rumors. Mr. Hughes shunted aside the 21 demands last Monday until Shantung shall have been settled. Later he compromised on the open door resolution. That does not look much like fight. But there still is a chance of a fight when the 21 demands are raised in the next few days—a chance.

The long delay in the settlement of the Pacific fortification clause has given rise from time to time to alarming reports, and has caused some real uneasiness. There is a bare possibility that this issue may lead to grave dissensions, but the probabilities are the other way, as the American and British delegations have repeatedly insisted. The fact seems to be that all the three big naval delegations—the American, British and Japanese—will go far to prevent anything like a collapse.

Two explanations are given for the seemingly inexplicable delay in the fortifications matter. One is that there really is trouble in Japan over the plan to allow the British to add to their fortifications south of the Equator, and that there is more trouble in Japan over the plan not to include the Bonin Islands in Japan proper—which would permit additional of them—this plan being in conflict with the understanding in many sections of Japanese opinion when the 5-5-3 ratio was settled. The other explanation of the delay is that Japan holds back in this matter and in Shantung until she sees what the end of the Far Eastern deliberations is to be.

For a while there were many observers of the Conference who believed that Mr. Hughes did not want the naval treaty completed until Far Eastern matters in general and Shantung in particular were settled. The number who hold that theory has decreased very greatly. Most of those about the Conference believe today that Mr. Hughes and the Harding Administration would go to great lengths if necessary to protect the naval treaty, no matter what else happened, and that the sooner it is in definite and accepted form the better they will like it.

BAR ASSOCIATION

The Alexandria Bar Association will hold a meeting at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the corporation court ing to the appointment of a special room at which time matters pretain-committee appointed several days ago to investigate the alleged divorce evil in this city will be discussed. It also is expected that someone will be named on this committee to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of judge J. K. M. Norton from that committee. At the meeting of the special committee Saturday afternoon Howard W. Smith was elected chairman of the special committee.

DEATH OF THE POPE

Catholic Christendom mourns the decease of its sovereign pontiff. All Christians, of whatever sect, will unite in their admiration of the saintly character who has departed this life and left the world poorer by his loss. His voice was ever heard in behalf of the good and holy things of life. His gentleness of disposition, his unflagging zeal for the betterment of mankind, his prayers for peace in the dark days of the war—all these endeared him to his fellowmen the world over, regardless of sect or creed. His dying moments were illumined by a faith sublime in its sincerity. His dying words conveyed the message for which he had wrough so many fateful years—"peace, peace" on earth, and good will to men!

GAZETTE'S PRIZE CONTEST

Some weeks ago the Gazette announced that it would award prizes for the best essays on the burning of the great library at Alexandria, Egypt, in the seventh century, A. D. Contest to be open to all pupils in all the schools in Alexandria, public, parochial, or private, between the ages of twelve and eighteen years of age.

The Gazette is happy to say that the number of essays received, greatly exceed its anticipations. The time for entry expired last night, and as we announced when stating the terms of the competition, we now give the names of the committee to whom the essays will be submitted for the award of prizes, which consists of Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, Miss Helen Norris Cummings and Mrs. George E. Warfield.

The writing of these essays has involved much study and original research. The practice this has given to the students has doubtless been of great value, besides contributing to their general store of knowledge.

The awards will be announced in the Gazette on February 10th. The first prize is five dollars; the next three dollars; and the third, four and fifth in order of merit will receive one dollar each.

WATER PRESSURE

Numerous complaints of the lack of adequate water pressure have been received recently at the Gazette office. Inquiry at the water company have apparently failed of satisfactory explanation.

What is the trouble?

CLEANLINESS IN THE HOME

A clean, well cared for house is desirable from every point of view, but certain kinds of cleanliness affect health more than others. The most scrupulous care should be exercised wherever food is stored or prepared. From the standpoint of health no room in the house is so important as the kitchen. It should be bright, airy and easy to clean, and there should be neither cracks nor crevices in wall or floor, and no dark corners or out of the way cupboards in which dust, food particles and moisture can accummulate. Such conditions not only attract mice and roaches, but furnish favorable soil for development of moulds the presence of which is very harmful to food Waging a constant warfare against the development of bacteria constitutes a large part of good house keeping.

All cooking utensils should be thoroughly washed, scalded and dried before they are put away, and any enameled or agat ware which has bgun to chip should be discarded Dishes should be washed and dried carefully, and dish clotnes and towels nould be washed and boiled after using, and if possible dried in the sun.

Every place in which food is kept should have constant care. The refrigerator is particularly important. Its linings should be water tight and the drain freely open at all times, and at least once a week it should be entirely emptied and cleansed in the following way: The racks should be thoroughly washed in hot soapsuds to which a small amount of washing soda has been added, rinsed in boiling water, dried and placed in the sun. All parts of the refrigerators should be washed in the same manner, especially grooves or projections where food or dirt may lodge. The drain-pipe should be flushed, the whole interior rinsed again with plain hot water, thoroughly dried with a clean cloth and left to air for at least an hour. The drainage pan should be washed and scalded frequently. Food showing the slightest evidence of spoiling should be removed from the frigerator at once.

Even more attention hould be paid to the hands of every person who prepares or handls the food. Hands should always be washed before handling food, and always after visiting the toilet, using the handkerchief or otherwise coming in contact with the nose or mouth. Theoretically coughing and sneezing ought not to occur in the neighborhood of food, especially of food to be eaten raw; and persons with coughs, colds or other communicable diseases, however, slight, ought not to handle food at all. Of course such a state as that is almost impossible to maintain, but abolute cleanliness of the hands will do much to prevent the spread of infection by means of food.

CLEANLINESS IN THE HOME METHODS OF CLEANING

The cleanliness of every part of the house has a direct bearing upon the health of the people who live in it. The thorough cleaning of rooms involves soap, water, sunshine, air and elbow grease, because cleaning means actually removing dirt and dust, not merely stirring it up to settle again; consequently dry sweeping and dusting are ineffectual. Vaccum cleaning and sweeping and dusting with damp or "dustless" mops and dusters are good. Deoderants and disinfectants do not take the place of ordinary cleanliness.

Dust does not carry living disease germs to an appreciable extent. The fact is now well established that diseases formerly thought to be transmitted by dust or even supposed to travel directly through the air are carried on tiny parcels of moisture and mucus expelled in coughing or sneezing. This mode of transmission is one of the most active agents in spreading certain kinds of communicable diseases.

Nevertheless, dust in motion is harmful; it irritates the lining membranes of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, even causing tiny wounds through which disease germs enter. Thus tuberculosis is especially prevalent among stone cutters, filt worker and others engaged in dusty trades. Metallic dust is especially harmful, because it is harder and sharper than dust from organic substances like wool and cotton.

One of the chief objections to dust is that its presence in a house generally indicates a low standard of cleanliness and the presence of other forms of uncleanliness less apparent but more serious.

The problem of cleaning would not be serious if the furnishings of most houses were simpler. Carpets many kind of ornaments, carved and upholstered furniture, draperies and many other things catch and retain dust, and because they are very hard to clean they often are not cleaned except very superfically. Carpets are considered unhygienic, but they would not be if they were thoroughly and frequently cleaned. In furnishing a house it is a dvisable to select those things that are easily cleaned as well as ornamental, and to have just as little furniture and as few ornaments as posible and yet give the house a comfortable homelike appearance.

CARE OF THE TEETH

The importance of cleanliness and proper care of the mouth and teeth can harlly be overestimated since it has a direct bearing on the health of the individual. Long ago it was recognized that persons with decayed or missing teeth frequently suffered from dyspepsia a natural result of inability to masticate properly, but only within recent years has it been realized that decayed teeth give rise to many other diseased conditions. Bacteria are constantly present in the mouth If the mucous of the mouth is not removed, it forms a sticky surfaces of the teeth and gums In this bacteria collect and pus or matter may also be formed, which, if carried by the blood to other parts of the body. may cause digestive troubles, rheumatism and diseases of the heart and kidneys

To keep the mouth and teeth healthy they must have three things: Proper use, proper care and proper treatment.

Teeth, like other parts of the body, need exercise. Foods that require a considerable amount of chewing should be included in the diet in order to furnish the requisite exercise. Such food is needed by children as soon as their first teeth have come, but care must be exercised to see that the food is actually chewed before it is swallowed.

A good brush should be provided for the care of the teeth. The stiffness of the bristles should be regulated according to the individual. The brush should be thoroughly rinsed after using and discarded as soon as it is worn. Dental floss is generally needed to remove particles of food that have lodged between the teeth

Brushing the teeth by passing the bristles across them is not efficacious They should be brushed not across but with the crack, as a good house wife sweeps the floor After brushing the teeth, the mouth should be rinsed by forcing lukewarm water about the teeth using all the force that can be brought to bear by the cheeks, lips, and tongue The teeth should be brushed after every meal and before going to bed.

The teeth. including the first teeth of children, should be inspected by a competent dentist at least twice a year. Periodic cleansing by a dentist and early attention to small cavities may prevent serious ill health and impairment of the body as well as the acute suffering generally accompanying treatment of advanced dental defects.

CLOTHING AND HEALTH

Clothing was originally used for purposes of ornament, the desire for some covering as protection against cold and dampness having arisen much later.

The amount of clothing required for adequate protection varies greatly, but is increasingly recognized that light clothing is best, provided that wearer is really proteced from the cold. Clothing should be porous in order to allow ventilaton of the body, supported as far as possible from the shoulders, clean and well aired. Dampness favors the growth of germs which may cause irritation of the skin. Too solid clothing prevents the air from getting to the body and prevents the pores of the skin from breathing.

Clothing should not constrict the body or hamper its movements. Perhaps the worst health menace for which clothing is to blame comes from the high heeled shoes on which many women prefer to limp through life. From the health standpoint shoes of great importance, and fortunately, most walking shoes of the presen day are made with low, broad heels. Bad shoes are responsible for many cases of flat feet, whose muscles have degenerated through nonuse, and for much so called rheumatism which is merely the protest of abused muscles. By distorting the feet, bad shoes also prevent comfortable walking, which is the only out of door exercise readily available for the vast majority of people, and, vast majority of people; and, what is still worse, the resulting unnatural position of the body sometimes has serious consequences by bringing injurious strain on other muscles and the organs of the body.

In like manner clothing drawn in too tightly at the waists may result in serious injury to the organs. For some years, fortunately, fashion has decreed a loose, comfortable waistline for women, and better health should be the result. Clohing in one piece so that the weight hangs from the shoulders is much better for health, and round garters should never be worn tight enough to hamper circulation.

Wife and Babe Make His Accept $1,000,000 He Spurned

Idealism is a beautiful thing, but it is outweighed by a wife and baby, according to Charles Garland, who has reversed his original decision and accepted the $1,000,000 legacy left him by his father, the late James A. Garland, of Boston. Young Mrs. Garland and her newborn child, who, with the husband and father, are living in a dumbledown farmhouse a short distance from here, were responsible for his change of heart. Garland, who refused the fortune because, he said, it was not "Christlike" has come to believe that his wife and child are entitled to whatever comfort can be obtained for them, wherefore the necessity for money. Garland surprised the world in 1920 when he refused to accept a legacy of more than $1,00,000. "Christ would have refused to be a millionaire, why shouldn't I?" said young Garland. At that time he had just reached his majority. So Charles aGrland has become a millionaire after all, and it is comidently expected that one of the first outward signs of affluence will be extensive repairs made on the farmhouse. The photograph shows Charles Garland and his wife.

Va. Good Roads Association

Richmond, Jan. 20.—What the General Assembly may do with reference to providing money for road construction, the administration of State highway funds and any changes in routings of sections of the State highway system has created State wide interest in the meeting of the Virginia Good Roads Association will have the largest attendance of any road meeting ever held in the State.

For the benefit of the county road supervisors and citizens interested in county as well as State highway construction the Virginia Good Roads Association will have an interesting exhibition of maps and of graphics of county as well as State highway systems. The State maps will show just where the State road funds have been expended during the past three years.

One of the most important addresses which will be made before the convention will b that of Colonel Thomas B. McAdams, president of the American Bankers' Association who is recognized as one of the greatest financial authorities in the United States. He will speak on the subject of "Financing Our Highways." Colonel McAdams has been making a detailed study of the financial side of road construction in Virginia and will be in a position to speak authoritatively on this subject. Hon. C. H. Huston of Washington, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce of the United States, a Southerner who has been deeply interested for a number of years in the development of the South through high way improvement will discuss the subject of "Highways as Avenues of Commerce." Ex-Governor Charles H. Brough, of Arkansas, president of the United States Good Roads Association and Capt. P. St. Julian Wilson, chief engineer of the U. S. Office of Public Roads will also be among the speakers. An accounting of his stewardship will be made by George P. Coleman, State Highway Commissioner with ample opportunity for a free discussion of his report from the floor.

As Thursday, January 19th was the anniversary of General Robert E. Lee, the program of the afternoon session on that day was devoted to a memorial to General Lee. This session was presided over by Mrs. Huston, of Washington, president of the Lee Highway Association.

Wednesday night, January 18th was devoted to showing good roads motion pictures. An interesting program of picture was arranged. ranged.

The only social feature connected with the three day business session of the convention was the annual banquet of the Association which was held at the Grays' Armory on Thursday night, January 19th. The members of the General Assembly and State officials were the guests of honor of the Association at this banquet.

VETERANS' BUREAU OPENS BRANCH OFFICE

A meeting of over three hundred former service men was held in the armory at Cumberland, Maryland, on Sunday, January 8th, under the auspices of the Ft. Cumberland Post of the American Legion. The meeting was in connection with the recent opening of the sub district office of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau at Cumberland.

The meeting was addressed by Mayor Koombs, officers of the American Legion post and representatives of the new Veterans' Bureau office. The Mayor stressed the obligations of the former service men to take care of their war time insurance and also to associate in organization activities with the men with whom they saw service in the great war. He also pointed out that with the establishmen of the new sub district office every man in the community and in nearby counties owed it to himself to immediately adjust such claims and insurance matters as he had with the government.

John H. Wiserman the new sub district manager for Cumberland, asked all former service men who had claims pending with the government or who wished to adjust their insurance matters to visit the new Cumberland office. Mr. Wiserman and members of his staff will address the Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce of Cumberland during the coming week.

Plans for complete checking up on the claims of former service men being hospitalized by the government, as announced by Col. Chas. R. Forbes, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, will be closely followed up by the special contact officers of the local district. Col. Forbes has ordered a campaign that will bring in quickly all the evidence, including affidavits, necessary to the immediate settlement of the claims held by the ex service men who are now being taken care of in government hospitals.

In the Fourth District which includes the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, much of this work has already been done. In addition to the campaign authorized by the Director, District Manager Albert E. Haan has ordered a continuous follow up, so that as new cases are brought into the hospital the necessary information will be obtained for the immediate adjustment of their claims.

The principle hospital where former service men are placed under the direction of the Fourth District of the Veterans' Bureau are Ft. McHenry, Perryville and Foster Clinic in Maryland, St. Elizabth's, Mt. Alto, the Naval Hospital and Walter Reed in Washington, the Naval Hospital and the Public Health Hospital at Norfolk, in Virginia. In addition to these there are certain qualified hospitals in ths territory where patients are placed on contract. The plans of the Veterans' Bureau contemplate a complete clean up on all patients in these institutions.

WAR ORPHANS

Hundreds of war orphans in Poland who have relatives in America anxious to bring them here and adopt them, will be unable to come because the immigration quota for Poland has already been used up. The Jewish War Orphans' Bureau, which has been assisting relatives in America to locate orphans, fit them for their journey and secure an escort for them, has announced that it can not accept any cases of children born in Poland, until June 30, when the present quota regulation expires. In most cases these children are now absolutely alone and uncared for on the streets in Polish towns.

The American Jewish Relief Committee, which is raising a fund of $14,000 000 for the relief and establishment of millions of destitute Jews in Central and Eastern Europe, will establish a special emergency fund to save the lives of these homeless children. Contributions may be sent to the national headquarters, 103 Park Avenue, New York.

Half Sick, Cross Husbands Will Be Helped by Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Is he "cross as a bear" when he comes home? Is he nervous and a bit pale and always tired? You can help him back to health with Gude's Pepto-Mangan. He is run-down, and Pepto-Mangan, the wonderful blood tonic with the right kind of iron in it, will build him up. Help your husband get plenty of red blood and he will be well and good-natured again and stronger, too. Good blood, good health, makes happy good humor—that is the way it goes. If you don't give him some kind of a tonic he will probably get worse—they usually do. Go to the drug store and ask for Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid or tablet form. It is pleasant to take and works wonders if taken daily for a few weeks. Advertisement.

McIntire, of this city, who has done so much for the white schools of the country, will also help in the erection of the proposed building. The colored people of the community are also contributing liberally to the project.

FOR GREATER ALEXANDRIA

B. Weil Says We Must Boost and Work Hard.

Thinks School Building and Houses Should be Built—"We Must Hustle," He Says

B. Weil, of Weil Brothers, tells the Gazette reporter that in order to bring about a Greater Alexandria, we all must do our part of the hustling and boosting and must not be too much depressed at the thought of hard times—for times are not hard.

"I think that we need everything that is good to make the city as it should be, but we are asked how are we going to get the money. We must work and hustle and make every minute count in the building up of a business and the same rule will hold true with the building of a city.

"We must boost our city to the sky. We cannot afford for our own interests to go out of the city when asked about our home, hang our head as if ashamed to admit our abiding place and tell that is anything except the very best. We should throw our shoulders back squarely and with our head up answer 'Yes, I am' from Alexandria and am proud of it, for there is not a better city in the country.' That would not be untrue for is there a real Alexandrian who does not love his city? If he does not then he is not an Alexandrian.

"School buildings are among the most important questions now. To erect a building would require a deal of money, but if we want it we will get it. So why should we not go to work for the thing that would do us good and get it.

"A road to Fairfax has been proposed and is being worked for, and if gotten will bring to our city tourists and trade from all sections of the country.

"You hear everywhere about hard times, but times are not hard—just a little slow. Wait until the mattress in the foreign countries are settled and our exporters can grant credit to the foreign merchants and then our country will boom.

"We need better housing conditions—that is, we need more houses. As another proof that times are not hard, look at the property values now, they have not gone down, and that is one of the best signs of prosperity.

"I hold to that old opinion that if we want anything and are willing to work without rest for it we will get it. We must boom our city outside of it and inside try to see what we need, and get it. No one has ever been known to succeed in any line of business if he tells his customers that his goods are not good. He must tell them that his goods are good and prove that they are. This same principle may be applied to building a city, I think.

"So you see we must get before us what we want and let nothing check us as we journey toward it. We will not reach the ideal, to be sure, but every step closer will that much and in time we will get a long way. Work and boost and hustle and we shall have a Greater Alexandria and all that it means.

Scientific Instruments Repaired Here and Engineers Hammers Shipped to Algeria

Alexandrians are just now engaged in certain lines of activity of which little is known to the outside and which promises to lead to even bigger things. This morning a representative of The Gazette was shown a box of scientific instruments which had been repaired in this city by R. L. Atkinson, which were being shipped to Prof. F. F. Grout, University of Minnesota Minneapolis, Minn. Considerable work of this kind is done by Mr. Atkinson for various universities throughout the country.

T. A. Hinton, of this city, has just shipped to New York for the Algerian government a quantity of mechanical engineers hammers which are used in prospecting for minerals. Mr. Hinton has been manufacturing these hammers for some time past.

Man With Bad Cold Held For Grand Jury

"I bought the whiskey for my own personal use in order to make some medicine for a cold I caught a few months ago" was the plea made by a one armed colored man giving the name of Henry Richardson, charged by the police with violating the provisions of the State prohibition law. The police offered as evidence, four small bottles which were filled with what is supposed to have been corn liquor. They claimed they found them on his person when he was arrested Saturday night. Chief Goods testified that Richardson, after being taken in custody, told him that he sold them at $1.50 per bottle. Justice Duval said he believed him guilty of a technical violation and, therefore, held him for the grand jury.

Richardson was arrested Saturday night by Chief Goods, Sergt. Wilkinson, Sergt. Campbell and Policemen Durrer, Magner and Carlton A. Padgett.

VIRGINIA NEWS

Norfolk—The largest number of baptisms and the largest total collections in any year since the Norfolk and Portsmouth Baptist Council has been in existence were those of last year, it was reported at the meeting of the Baptist preachers of Norfolk and Portsmouth in Court Street Church, Portsmouth. The report, read by Rev. H. F. Jones, pastor of Port Norfolk Baptist Church showed 1 350 bantisms, a larger number than in any of the other thirty-nine districts of the state, and collections totaling $117,000, which is six times as much as the collections of 1916.

Newport News—It is reported here that the Du Pont site and equipment at Penniman Va., has been sold to a manufacturing concern for $100,000 and that some business will be started in the near future, either in Newport News or Williamsburg. The land alone at Penniman cost the Du Ponts, whose headquarters are at Wilmington, Del., $148 000, when it was purchased during the world war. They employed thousands of workmen during the world war.

Lexington—The annual Founders' Day ceremonies of Washington and Lee University, held here today, officially marked the opening of the campaign among Southern newspapers to reestablish and endow the Lee memorial school of journalism at Washington and Lee.

Hero Sea Captain, Wife and Children

When the United States liner Hudson reached New York waters with six men rescued from a sinking fishing smack off St. Pierre, N. F., aboard, most everybody concerned or interested accepted the news as a matters of course. But down at Whitestone, L. I., there's a pretty little woman who is firmly convinced that it was all due to a special and particularly merciful act of Providence. She is Mrs. A. B. Randall wife of the captain of the Hudson. Captain Randall, it will be recalled, was confronted last October with charges that he had passed a party of fishermen adrift in an open dory without making any effort to pick them up. On these charges he was tried and acquitted, but only after he had been temporarily suspended. Now, on his first trip after being restored to his command, he has had the good luck to silence criticism of his conduct by heroically rescuing six men from the sinking smack and bringing them safely into port. And his faithful wife, for the life of her, can't see anything but the hand of Divine Providence in the matter. "God must have been watching out for him to give him this opportunity," she said in advancing her view. The rescue was effected on January 1. A terrific gale was raging at the time. The captain of the smack had been swept overboard,e and the six survivors of the crew were expecting a watery grave any hour. The rescue was accomplished by a lifeboat sent out, and under great danger and difficulties. It was directed by aCptain Randall in person. The photograph shows Captain Randall, with his wife and three children (from left to right).—Dorothy, Sylvia and Albert Jr.

Block Officers in Work

Two Washington Men Who Aided Bootleg Car Held For Grand Jury

The two men giving the names of John P. Casson and Elmer B. Arduser, arrested Saturday charged with attempting to interfere with the police by blocking the road when the police endeavored to capture a bootleg car subsequently captured Saturday in Washington, have been released on $1,000 bail bond each for their appearance before the grand jury.

It is claimed by the police that the men signaled the approaching liquor laden car and got in the road and prevented the officers capturing the liquor car from Washington.

The liquor car captured in Washington was chased by the police as far as Four Mile Run.

The police who were engaged in the arrest of the two men were Policemen Durrer, Magner, Morris and Welker.

Donald Kane, of Washington was captured in Washington after a pistol battle in the liquor car. The machine was wrecked and four persons were hurt.

A. L. I. 51 Baltimore 36

One of the fastest games ever witnessed in the Armory was played Saturday between the A. L. I. and the Merit A. C., of Baltimore, the former winning by the score of 51 to 36. The game was a nip and tuck affair from start to finish. The A. L. I. emerged ahead in the last five minutes to go and by some accurate goal shooting and passing, the soldiers came to the front with another victory, making 17 for the season with one defeat. In the preliminary game the A. L. I. with a mixed team defeated the Northwestern five of Washington by the score of 34 to 18. The score:

Can You See Your Ribs?

"It wasn't that I wanted to get fat,—no, I just wanted to put on about 8 pounds more flesh, then I'd be just right. I've nibbled at diets, gorged big meals, I've haunted health resorts, been to fine climates, guzzled milk, buttermilk, olive oil, emulsions, swallowed pills, digestion fads, and a score of other 'won't-works'. Finally, it dawned on me. None of these things was building up the new red blood cells I needed. I took S. S. S., the greatest red-blood-cell builder, firm-flesh producer, blood-cleanser known. I put on 7 pounds in a month, and my nerves, instead of strings feel like wires. S. S. S. has the world beat."

S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable in its medicinal ingredients. It has produced amazing results in building up run-down, thin-faced, ambitious men, and in making women of all ages more plump and beautiful, and younger looking. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes, The larger size is the more economical.

S. S. S. Will Build You Up.

Increase In Weight

MILLIONS of people all over the United States and Canada have not only been relieved of the most obstinate forms of dyspepsia and indigestion by the Tanlac Treatment after other remedies have failed, but many of them have reported a remarkable and rapid increase in weight and a return to normal health and strength by its use.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it with the most gratifying results and have told other millions what it has done for them.

That is THE REASON WHY Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in the United States and Canada, and that is also THE REASON WHY it is having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world today.

Tanlac is sold in Alexandria by Edgar Warfield, Jr., and leading druggists everywhere.

THE CARE OF MILK

Raw milk plays so important a part in the spread of disease that its fitness for human consumption is open to serious question, and yet from a nutritive point of view milk is the most important single article of food. Where it is possible to obtain certified milk, it is safe but too expensive for general use. Boiled milk is safe, but it is so changed in taste as to be unpalatable to many people, and it is also changed to some extent in quality. If milk is heated to a temperature of from 142 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit and kept at that temperature for thirty minutes, all disease germs in it are killed. This process, which is called pasteurization, renders milk safe and it can be carried out in the home with very little trouble. The objection is sometimes made that the continued use of pasturized milk for infants causes scurvy, but in New York City where over 90 per cent of the milk is pasteurized no increase in scurvy has been noticed, while a large diminution in the death rate of infants from diarrhoeal diseases has resulted, as in all cities where pasteurization is required.

The following is a simple method for pasteurizing a quart of milk which can be used in every home. If the directions are followed exactly the milk will be pasteurized at the end of process and no thermometer need be used. To prevent the milk bottle from breaking it should be placed for a few minutes in a pail of warm water so that heat will not be applied too suddenly. This method is taken from an article by Ruth Vories in Health News.

Boil two and a half quarts of water in a large agate saucepan, or, better still, two quarts of water in a ten pound tin lard pail. Place the slightly warmed bottle from the ice chest in it, cover with a cloth and set in a warm place. At the end of one hour remove the bottle of milk and chill it promptly. The water must be boiled in the container in which the pasteurization is to be done.

This simple method can be used in any home and it absolutely kills all disease germs in the milk.

FOOD

In the consideration of the relation between food and health two distinct problems are encountered; the problem of nutrition and problem of preventing sickness. Nutrition, or proper feeding is one of the most important, if not the most important factors in maintaining health but it is a subject far too broad to be treated in a single article and will be taken up again later on.

Most American families eat too much food that contains protein, such as meat and eggs. Excess of the food property called protein probably leads to the degeneration of the tissus and plays an important part in the development of the degenerative diseases. Habit is important here as in other ways of living, but cereals and vegetables should in large measure make up the diet of people who take little exercise and indeed of everyone in warm weather.

The amount of food required in 24 hours depends on many factors: age, weight, occupation, season and habit. Under weight and overweight are both abnormal conditions and both require the advice of a physician Rapid reduction in weight involves certain dangers, especially for persons with weak hearts, and should never be undertaken without consulting a doctor.

Food may cause sickness either because it is in itself harmful or because it carries disease germs. Meat from diseased animals should be destroyed before it reaches the market but bacterial activities in food originally wholesome may form in it poisonous substances. The chief diseases known to be carried by food water or milk are typhoid fever, paratyphoid, dysentary and other diarrheal diseases scarlet fever, diptheria, septic sore throat and tuberculosis. The sole problem here is to keep human and animal excretions out of food, water and milk. Since thorough cooking destroys disease germs danger arises chiefly from raw foods All fruits and vegetables eaten raw should first be thoroughly washed.

Water is essential to health. At least three pints should be drunk daily by each individual, the amount varying somewhat according to diet, exercise, temperature and so forth Most people drink far too little water. Supplying pure drinking water should be the responsibility of every city or town, but where there is no public water supply and wells or springs are used it becomes, of course, an individual responsibility. Contamination of the water supply is caused chiefly by sewage from cesspools, privies and drains. All well or spring water should be constantly watched and Boards of Health are always ready to examine samples of water and to report whether it is safe to drink. Boiling water for ten minutes kills all disease germs, but this is impracticable for family use. and a porcelan filter is probably the most satisfactory insurance of pure water, provided that it is kept clean, as there is more danger from an accumulation of bacteria in a filter than from no filter at all. It is not sufficient to have filtered water, for drinking purposes and still brush the teeth with water from the tap. Freezing destroys some germs but not all and ice should be used in drinking water only when it is known to be pure

The Four Brownies Witness a Hermit Crab Fight.

AFTER Stella finished telling her Brownies about the fascinating little Hermit Crabs they immediately decided to do as she suggested and go to a nice place on the seashore to watch them. They found just the right spot where there was a quiet pool of water surrounded by large, sheltering rocks. In the circle of these rocks the water that had been left there at high tide was so still that it seemed like glass, and so clear that the four Brownies who sat on one of the rocks could look straight through it to the golden sand bottom.

It just happened that there were ever so many Hermit Crabs, and the Brownies held their breath for fear of frightening them away, for they did so enjoy watching them.

The first interesting thing they saw were two tiny Hermit Crabs having a terrific fight. As it had begun before they had arrived the Brownies had no idea what the struggle was about.

"Probably some crab grievance," Pimzie whispered, "but I don't care about the cause of the fight; it's the fight itself I'm crazy about! I never saw anything so funny in my life!"

It was funny!

The two battling "Hermits" were so furious with each other that they became more and more fierce every moment. One got a tight grasp with his large pinching claw onto a small claw of his little enemy—and first thing they knew the whole claw came off!

"But that's all right," Snookums whispered excitedly, "because I remember Stella once told us that a Crab or Lobster or any such creature grows a new claw or foot in place of one they may have lost—so it will soon grow out again."

In a few moments little Hermit Crab No. 1 got a firm hold on the body of Hermit Crab No. 2 and the latter was so excited and angry that it lost its tail grip on its little shell house and in another moment found itself dragged completely out by its opponent!

That ended the fight!

There was real crab horror and fright on the face of "Hermit" No. 2, for it suddenly felt quite alone in the world, without its claw and also without the protection of its carefully chosen shell house. In a frenzied way it started scurrying here, there and everywhere searching for its lost shell house, as it had been a lovely home—just the kind that any Hermit Crab would be proud to live in. It had once belonked to a dead Whelk and it was ever so comfortable. It must be found! No matter what became of "Hermit" No. 1—it must be found!

Finally after much hunting through the innumerable shells and Crabs around about the excited little "Hermit" finally located its empty shell home.

The Brownies were quite sure that they could see a joyous crab smile spread over its tiny face. They next had the fun of watching it back up to the opening of the shell and carefully poke its terrified, skin covered body down the empty opening.

"It seems rather glad to find its own front door again!" exclaimed Lorykins in delight. "I know I would be after so much excitement and trouble. I would want to rest."

And that was exactly what the Hermit Crab did!

After contentedly settling down in its home it promptly looked around with the glint of battle in its eyes for its forgotten enemy, who had long since hurried away; so after sorrowfully gazing at its torn claw joint it snuggled down as second choice in the sand for a needed rest.

Stella Explains a Queer Sea Animal to Her Brownies.

STELLA'S Brownies had been so completely fascinated seeing the fierce, angry fight between the two tiny Hermit Crabs (for they had both been so terribly in earnest) that they really were sorry when the funny little battle was over—when one "Hermit" had wandered away and the other had decided to rest in its comfortable shell house, from which it had been, for a short time, pulled out by its "Hermit" enemy.

After the "Hermit" had retreated as far down as possible into its home and the fight really was a thing of the past, the four Brownies all drew a deep, "well-that's-over" breath, and then they looked around, hoping for more strange sights to see.

Safely perched on the rocks, they were gazing down into the quiet water. In fact, the water was so very still that they could look straight through to the sandy bottom, and, oh, how many, many queer things they saw.

Their attention was promptly claimed by the oddest kind of gray, shell "honey combs" that seemed to be attached and growing from one of the rocks under the water.

"What in the world can those be?" Kinkajou thoughtfully murmured. "I never saw anything like them! Let's wish that Stella were here so that she could tell us."

"Yes, let's!" exclaimed the other three Brownies, and they all closed their eyes very tight and "wished" ever so hard for their darling Wishing Fairy. In less than a minute she was with them—she had come all the way from the End-of-the-Earth! The Brownies weren't even surprised when they opened their eyes and saw her, for they knew only too well that she would feel their wish and join them as quickly as magic made possible.

"Well, what do you want?" she asked with a smile as she sat down on a rock beside Snookums. "I knew that you were wishing for me, so here I am."

"We want you to tell us what these curious things are, Stella, dear," answered Pimzie as he pointed to the honey combike growths on the rock. "See," he cried excitedly, "there is a funny little waving branch coming out from one of the cells!"

"Oh!" exclaimed the Fairy as her eyes followed the Brownie's pointing finger. "Those are Barnacles, and those feathery things are feet that wave out from their shells. See, lots of them are now waving their feet—they always do that when the water is motionless and they are undisturbed. That is how they get their food. The feathery part of these feet (or branches, as you called them a moment ago) stirs the surrounding water and in this way sends all kinds of small sea creatures into their open mouths—sea creatures that are too tiny to be seen. When a Barnacle is frightened it draws in these plumed feet very deep and tightly closes its shell against its enemies. They cannot move away, as you can see, for each Barnacle is attached to the rock; but then, they don't want to. They are perfectly happy.

"Barnacles lay eggs and their babies swim gayly around until they become a certain age, and then they take a firm hold onto a rock, the bottom of a boat or some piece of old wood and begin growing little shells of their own. And there they stay in the same place until they die, when their shells remain until they, too, rot away, and more Barnacles grow in their place.

"Daddy Longlegs."

"THE 'foolishest' little Spider has come to the End-of-the-Earth to see you, Stella, dear, and it is the tiniest, roundest kind of a Spider, too!"

"Your grammar is a bit strange!" laughed the Wishing Fairy, "but all the same I shall see this strange visitor."

"Have you a wish?" she asked the tiny Spider when she reached the Get Little Pool, where it was patiently waiting for her.

"I should say I have!" it exclaimed enthusiastically. "A big wish! A much bigger wish than I am a Spider! That's just it."

"What do you mean by 'that's just it'?" Stella asked, for she was ever so curious to know why the wee creature seemed so sad and depressed.

"Well," it answered thoughtfully, "I shall try to explain what the trouble is. As you see, I am very small, and, as you also see by my eight legs, I am a Spider and not an Insect—for Insects only have six legs, and"——

"How about the Centipedes and the Millapedes?" asked Pimzie with a grin. "They have more legs than one likes to count." He was standing just behind the Fairy and had consequently overheard the entire conversation.

"There are exceptions to every rule," the tiny Spider said impatiently. "But the general rule—and I do not happen to be an exception—is that Insects have six legs, while Spiders always have eight—four on either side. Tell me, have you ever heard of a Spider with more or less than eight legs?"

"No," admitted Pimzie in a shame faced way.

"Then," the little thing exclaimed excitedly, "I am a Spider. Now, if you will stop your constant interruptions," and he glared with his bright beady eyes directly at Pimzie, "I'll go back to what I was trying to tell you. I am such a foolish, squashy Spider that every morning I almost drown in the dew as I try to get over the wet grass. It's simply awful! And the whole trouble is that I have such short, useless legs. I have come here, Stella, dear, to beg you to give me long legs—the longer the better! I don't care if they are twenty times longer than my body; but I want them long enough to allow me to step right over tall grass and leaves. I want to stop being afraid of drowning—and I want to go home to my wife and babies and tell them that they, too, will always have long legs from now on; that the Wishing Fairy has given them to our whole family, so that we need never again fear being swamped by dew. Will you do this? Oh, please say you will."

"Of course she will!" Pimzie exclaimed. "You big silly! Don't you know that our Wishing Fairy always helps those who are in trouble or danger, and I should think, from your size, that you would always be in immediate danger of being drowned—when you strike a heavy dew."

The Wishing Fairy, however, merely nodded and began waving her wonderful magic wand above the Spider; and as she did so little Mr. Spider's legs started growing and growing until he, in his amazement, thought they never would stop. They seemed to spread out over the ground all around him and they lifted his small brown body away up from the grass he had been standing on.

When he finally reached home after his visit he was puffed up to almost twice his size on account of pride in his long legs, and when his babies all yelled out, "Oh, 'Daddy Longlegs,' what has happened to you?" he immediately perched himself in the middle of all his legs and told them all about his trip to Stella, about the End-of-the-Earth, about Pimzie, the Get Little Pool and everything.

And "Daddy Longlegs" he has been called ever since!

'Tis the Night Before Christmas.

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house
Not a creature was stirring—not even a mouse—not even a mouse.

A LITTLE girl 7 years old and her 6-year-old brother were trying as hard as they could to stay awake, for it was Christmas Eve, and they determined that this year they were going to surprise Santa Claus. They both sat side by side in a large chai before the fire, and it had been very pleasant as long as the fire flamed, though now that it had died down to nothing but a few glowing embers the two children had to cuddle close to each other to keep warm.

It was awfully late; their father and mother had long since gone to bed, for, you see, the children had crept out of bed and down stairs to the library as soon as they had heard the door of their parents' room shut. The library was quite dark now that the fire had gone out. "Not even a mouse—the chimney was hung on the stockings with care."

"Ha! ha!" some one was laughing just behind their chair. "How could any one hang a chimney on stockings? You're so sleepy you're talking backward!"

The children sprang up to see who was speaking. Imagine their astonishment when they saw a tiny little man in brown with long pointed shoes and a pointed hat.

"Who are you?" they cried.

"My name is Pimzie and I'm one of Stella's Brownies. She is the Wishing Fairy. This is a very busy night for her, for," the little fellow added mysteriously, "she is helping Santa Claus. They are great friends, for Santa Claus's home is very near ours—at the End-of-the-Earth."

"And how does Stella help?" asked the little girl. "Does she also bring toys to children?"

"Oh, dear, no!" Pimzie laughed. "What she does is far more important than that! She visits the children who have been overlooked by Santa Claus and have received nothing for Christmas. She consoles them, and when their hearts are aching with disappointment she makes them happy."

"I don't see how she possibly can!" the little boy exclaimed. "What does she do?"

"Oh, she can do anything!" Pimzie proudly cried. "It's very simple. All she does is to wave her magic wand over them. They don't even know that she is doing it, for they cannot see her, but all of a sudden a happy feeling comes into their hearts and they begin thinking that no matter how hard things are to bear—they might have been worse. Stella always places this idea in their heads, for you can well imagine it is sure to put an end to that big aching disappointment; and another thing she does when she waves her magic wand above them is to give them something far more important than toys—something that will make them happy when they are grown up. You see," he added, "toys only give pleasure for a very short while."

"What does your Fairy give?"

"Good eyesight, good hearing or health or a love for music or for nature or for animals or something wonderful like that. Stella thinks that if one has love in one's heart one just can't help being happy. It's the most important thing in the world. And she's right, too! That's why she is so happy. She loves every one and everything and spends her time helping others."

"How wonderful!" exclaimed the children.

"I think," the little girl said thoughtfully, "that I'd prefer to have Stella's visit rather than Santa Claus's. Does she always come to every one whom he overlooks?"

"Absolutely every one!" and Pimzie giggled. "She never fails."

Just then the tinkle of sleigh bells could be distinctly heard. Now, of course, the children were going to see Santa Claus—those must be his reindeer! They opened their eyes very wide——

Hello! It was early morning! They had fallen asleep after all, and here they were in the same chair. The fire was out and a large Christmas tree covered with blazing candles greeted their sight. There were books and dolls and—oh, all kinds of toys, and even a real live kitten with a red ribbon around its neck!

Now the children were wide—very wide awake!

Cleanliness and Health

One of the most important factors in conserving the health of the individual is a favorable environment. By environment is meant everything outside the body that affects it and, of course, for the majority of people the home constitutes the most important part of the environment. This is particularly true of children since they spend the greater part of their time in or about their homes, and get there the foundation on which their health in later years depends. For persons employed away from home, industrial and occupational hygiene is extremely important also, but the conditions among which people actually live and eat and sleep concern everybody.

There are many important factors that enter into making the home environment favorable or unfavorable to health. Among them are cleanliness, light, heat, ventilation, the exclusion of flies and other insects, the proper disposal of sewage and garbage, as well as the right conditions for rest and recreation.

There is not enough consideration given to the above questions. Most people live where they must, and few have any part in planning the construction of their own houses. In choosing a house, however, one should remember that rooms where sunshine never enters are unfit for continued occupation. For children, in particular, fresh air and sunshine are essential, and it may be economy in the end to pay a comparatively high rent for an apartment having sunshine during at least a part of the day. Ignorance and carelessness, unfortunately, can spoil the best living conditions and sometimes even in the country fresh air and sunshine are excluded from sleeping and living rooms.

The majority of people do not realize the importance of these home conditions, and they impair their health and shorten their lives with improper ventilation and insufficient sunshine and yet think that they are taking the best possible care of themselves because they are paying strict attention to diet.

Richmond—Asked today if he had any announcement to make with regard to the appointment of a secretary and assistant secretary, Governor-Elect Trinkle said that he would name William H. Cardwell as his secretary and Mrs. E. J. Sullivan as his assistant secretary. Both live in Richmond. Governor-Elect Trinkle announced that these appointments were of a temporary nature, and would last during the life of the general assembly.

Richmond—Senator J. M. Dickerson, of Floyd, one of the few new faces in the senate, is an ordained minister, and, incidentally, is the first democrat sent to the senate from his country in 49 years. On Sunday morning Senator Dickerson will fill the pulpit at Woodland Heights Primitive Baptist church, 28th street and Semmes avenue.

New York has 4,700 miles of streets. A stroll from there to Petrograd would be no longer than a walk through all the city streets.

SOUTHERN RY. TRAINS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 21.—Cost of meals to passengers in dining cars on Southern Railway System trains has been reduced through the plan of serving special combination meals at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.50 and at the same time substantial reductions have been made in the prics of many popular dishes in the a la cart menus, Passenger Traffic Manager W. H. Tayloe announced today.

"In arranging these combination breakfasts, luncheons and dinners our Dining Car Department is offering attractive selection at prices which compare favorably with those in any first class restaurant," said Mr. Tayloe. "They are proving very popular with passengers who consider them a very pleasant reminder of pre war days.

"While these combinations enable passengers to get their meals at greatly reduced cost, we recognize that many persons prefer to make their own selections and so have retained the a la carte service, at the same time making substantial reductions in the prices of many standard dishes, some one of which is included in almost every meal served."

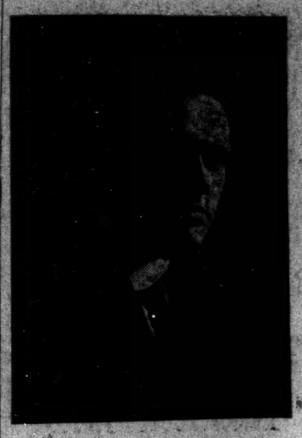
Freckled Pink Shoulders Win Verdict for Girl Against Beauty Parlor

Miss Grace Naughton owned a pair of freckled, pink shoulders, and a beauty doctor said that she could remove the freckles and tried to. The beauty doctor failed, so Miss Naughton brought suit in the Small Claims Court of San Francisco for the recovery of the amount of money she paid, alleging that the freckles stayput. The Judge took a peep at the uncovered shoulders of the fair damsel and marked them "Exhibits A and B" and rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. The exhibits are modestly shown here, but a nifty fur cloak prevents a too curious gaze.



JAMES B MCCRAVY

James B. McCravy, the singing evangelist and violinist, is assisting Rev. Mr. Ramsey and the pastor, Rev. Owen P. Lloyd, in the revival meetings which are being held in the Second Baptist Church of this city. Mr. Cravy is a violinist of great talent and a singer with a wonderful voice, and the greatest part about it, say his friends and admirers, is that when he sings everyone wants to sing with him. His work, along with the preaching of Rev. Ramsey, has been attracting large audiences at the church for the past week. These services will continue throughout this week and all are cordially invited to hear this man and see if he can work his charms upon you and make you sing.

The children's choir which he has instituted and is training is one of the chief attractions at these meetings.

INSPIRING SERVICES

Rev. Dr. John Lee Allison Preaches Two Special Sermons

Inspiring services were held yesterday in the Second Presbyterian Church. At the morning service, Rev. Dr. Jno. Lee Allison pastor spoke on the value of economy. He took as his text "gather up the fragments that remain that nothing be lost." These were spoken by our Saviour after He had fed miraculously 5000 people.

While God is prodigal in His gifts he discouraged waste in physical possession in time and in opportunity for Christian service. Dr. Allison stressed the subjects for thrift week, very forcefully declaring it a patriotic and religious duty. In the afternoon Congressman Stevenson of S. C. spoke at the men's meeting on the Bible and its influence on literature
